africa and the african diaspora is the outcome of a symposium held at portland state university in portland oregon february 2002 entitled symposium on freedom in black history designed to celebrate black history month the major themes of the conference were how africans both at home on the continent and dispersed abroad often by forces beyond their control reacted to oppression and subjugation in seeking freedom from slavery colonialism and discrimination the volume documents the many forms that oppression has taken the many forms that resistance has taken and the cultural developments that have allowed africans to adapt to the new and changing economic social and environmental conditions to win back their freedom oppressive strategies as divide and rule could be based on any one of a number of features such as skin color place of origin culture or social or economic status people drawn into the vortex of the atlantic trade and funneled into the sugar fields the swampy rice lands or the cotton coffee or tobacco plantations of the new world and elsewhere had no alternative but to risk their lives for freedom the plantation provided the context for the dehumanization of disadvantaged groups subjected to exhausting work frequent punishment and personal injustice of every kind this book demonstrates that the history and interpretation of these struggles of the oppressed peoples to free themselves have not received proportionate attention and analysis as have other aspects of that history patrick manning refuses to divide the african diaspora into the experiences of separate regions and nations instead he follows the multiple routes that brought africans and people of african descent into contact with one another and with europe asia and the americas in weaving these stories together manning shows how the waters of the atlantic ocean the mediterranean sea and the indian ocean fueled dynamic interactions among black communities and cultures and how these patterns resembled those of a number of connected diasporas concurrently taking shape across the globe manning begins in 1400 and traces five central themes the connections that enabled africans to mutually identify and hold together as a global community discourses on race changes in economic circumstance the character of family life and the evolution of popular culture his approach reveals links among seemingly disparate worlds in the mid nineteenth century for example slavery came under attack in north america south america southern africa west africa the ottoman empire and india with former slaves rising to positions of political prominence yet at the beginning of the twentieth century the near elimination of slavery brought new forms of discrimination that removed almost all blacks from government for half a century manning underscores the profound influence that the african diaspora had on world history demonstrating the inextricable link between black migration and the rise of modernity especially in regards to the processes of industrialization and urbanization a remarkably inclusive and far reaching work the african diaspora proves that the advent of modernity cannot be imaginatively or comprehensively engaged without taking the african peoples and the african continent as a whole into account the african diaspora is arguably the most important event in modern african history from the fifteenth century to the present millions of africans have been dispersed many of them forcibly others driven by economic need or political persecution to other continents creating large communities with african origins living outside their native lands the majority of these communities are in north america this historic displacement has meant that africans are irrevocably connected to economic and political developments in the west and globally among the known legacies of the diaspora are slavery colonialism racism poverty and underdevelopment yet the ways in which these same factors worked to spur the scattering of africans are not fully understood by those who were part of this migration or by scholars historians and policymakers in this definitive study of the diaspora in north america toyin falola offers a causal history of the western dispersion of africans and its effects on the modern world reengaging old and familiar debates and framing new ones that enrich the discourse surrounding africa falola isolates the thread running nearly six centuries that connects the history of slavery the transatlantic slave trade and current migrations a boon to scholars and policymakers and accessible to the general reader the book explores diverse narratives of migration and shows that the cultures that migrated from africa to the americas have the capacity to unite and create a new pan africanist movement within the globalized world toyin falola is the jacob and frances sanger mossiker chair in the humanities and university distinguished teaching professor at the university of texas at austin he is the 2011 recipient of the distinguished africanist award from the african studies association and serves as the vice president of the international scientific committee of the unesco slave route project his previous books published by the university of rochester press include the power of african cultures and nationalism and african intellectuals as africans and descendants of slaves have sought to expand an understanding of their history focus on the african diaspora the global dispersal of a people and their culture has increased african studies have assumed a prominent place in historical scholarship and a growing number of non african scholars has helped revise a discipline established over several decades the six contributions in this volume were compiled as a result of the thirtieth walter prescott webb memorial lecture held at the university of texas at arlington the contributors nationally recognized in the field represent a collaborative analysis of the african diaspora from african and non african perspectives joseph e harris discusses how the african diaspora influences the economies politics and social dynamics of both the homeland and the host country alusine jalloh reconstructs the mercantile activities of the fula in colonial sierra leone joseph e inikori argues that slavery and serfdom in medieval europe provide greater insights into precolonial africa than do standard new world comparisons colin a palmer examines the power relationships that undergirded american slavery in order to better understand the enslaved douglas b chambers reveals the enduring influence of africanisms in the historical development of afro virginian slave culture and dale t graden looks at african slavery in salvador bahia brazil between 1848 and 1856 focusing on the bahian elite and their response to slave resistance this work challenges ideas about african culture held by many western and african thinkers and confronts the west's assumptions of its philosophical superiority the author argues that africa needs to imagine itself in its own terms rather than in those borrowed from the west a portion of a diary kept during a cable laying expedition down the west coast of africa starting from bathurst on the river gambia and terminating at the portuguese town of st paul de loanda p vii mazrui examines the importance of africa historically culturally and economically in the development of the west particularly the united states and he contrasts this demonstrable importance with the combination of neglect and malice directed at africa and those of african descent by the west and by the united states in particular as mazrui illustrates throughout this is a tale of two edens africa as the eden of lost innocence and america as the eden of current power and future fulfillment people of african ancestry have been part of the vanguard for the edenization of america but america is also influencing the first eden africa america is a major force in the liberalization of black people in africa and black people are a major force in the democratization of all people in america africans and their descendants have long been faced with abuse of their human rights most frequently due to racism or racialized issues consequently understanding shifting conceptualizations of race and identity is essential to understanding how people of color confronted these encounters this book addresses these issues and their connections to social justice discrimination and equality movements from colonial abuses or their legacies black people around the world have historically encountered discrimination and yet they do not experience injustice opaquely the chapters in this book explore and clarify how africans and their descendants struggled to achieve agency despite long histories of discrimination contributors draw upon a range of case studies related to resistance and examine these in conjunction with human rights and the concept of race to provide a thorough exploration of the diasporic experience human rights race and resistance in africa and the african diaspora will appeal to students and scholars of ethnic and racial studies african history and diaspora studies
